 - The goal is done

 - Loveland data migration is done
 - Red Book in the archive had a bug that was preventing the objects from displaying properly
 - The bug is fixed, and a meeting is setup to work on the specifications
 - Priority for upcoming Sprint is to share work between libraries in the archive
 - Members will be able to see archive projects from other libraries
 - Even if you are not an archive member, if you are a Marmot Member you can turn on the archives.
 - Anne Arundel is our next Discovery Partner. The kickoff and initial meetings are planned for now. They are the Q2 library
 - Arlington Library App will be worked on for the next Sprint.
 - Pika roadmap available here
 - The permissions should be correct to access the Pika roadmap
 - The columns on the right are things that are being worked on or finished
 - There are columns for the current release and next release
 - The columns further to the left will have less information, and could change in priority
 - Good idea to do a catch-up on sideloads and bugs

Topic for Discussion – Display of hold information for titles with multiple editions

- Example: Maui Revealed
 - In this example, it shows there are 9 copies of the item and 5 holds
 - Unless you click to see the Show Editions button, you cannot see that there is actually 1 item with 5 holds
 - This information is misleading to patrons
 - Question: Do we remove the entire message, or just the part with the number of copies?
 - There was not clear answer to this question, so a poll was sent to the Discovery email.
 - Poll for copy/wait list info in search results.
